pany in the country. The great feature of the American is that of low rates, in opposition to the extertion-ate rates charged by other Co's who claim to be mutual and so give back to the in surer a dividend at some future time. The American however gives this divi-dend in advance, by an abatement from the price at time the transaction is made, which can be easily comprehended, as "much inarance for so much money" leaving the dividend in the pocket of the insured and charging for the insurance only.
